

Donald Trump Transition Team Questions Energy Department Workers on Climate

New York, December 13 (RHC)-- The Donald Trump transition team sent a memo to employees of the Department of Energy, questioning their work on climate change.

The 74-page questionnaire requests, among other things, information on which employees attended U.N. climate talks, and demands justification for a program tracking the nation's carbon dioxide pollution.

One Energy Department employee, speaking anonymously, told Reuters, "This feels like the first draft of an eventual political enemies list."
