

Iranian President Says His Country Will Not Give Up Nuclear Rights

Tehran, January 23 (RHC)-- Iranian President Hassan Rouhani says that Tehran will continue its peaceful nuclear activities under the supervision of the International Atomic Energy Agency.

In a speech at the World Economic Forum in Davos, Switzerland on Thursday, Rouhani said that Tehran will follow all international regulations over its nuclear energy program, but will not accept any discrimination in that regard and will not give up its nuclear rights.

The Iranian president stressed that Tehran is determined to reach a comprehensive nuclear deal with the five permanent members of the UN Security Council plus Germany.

Rouhani underscored Tehran's readiness to have constructive interaction with the world in various areas, including economy, politics, and security issues. He also described the Davos summit as a good opportunity to exchange views on the better management of world affairs.

The World Economic Forum (WEF) Annual Meeting 2014 is held from January 22nd to the 25th, with the theme of "The Reshaping of the World: Consequences for Society, Politics and Business."

<https://www.radiohc.cu/en/noticias/internacionales/12203-iranian-president-says-his-country-will-not-give-up-nuclear-rights>

Radio Habana Cuba