

International Water Convention kicks off in Havana

Havana, March 19 (RHC)-- Businessmen from 14 countries are attending the International Water Convention (CUBAGUA 2019), which was inaugurated Tuesday at Havana 's Convention Center.

Cuba is the most represented by entities of the business system of the National Institute of Hydraulic Resources (INRH), the main promoter of the four-day event, informed its Organizing Committee.

The event that will run through Friday, will provide for the exchange of knowledge, disseminate updated information and promote technologies and products associated with the management and use of water, the event organizers reported through social media and the INRH website.

The international forum includes keynote speeches about the latest products and latest technologies, and experiences and good practices in the water sector.

Under the slogan 'Water in harmony with a sustainable world', Cubagua 2019 is sponsored by INRH, the National Union of Architects and Construction Engineers of Cuba, supported by the Chapingo Autonomous University in Mexico, and other national and foreign institutions.
