

German prosecutors indict Volkswagen executives over diesel emissions scandal

Berlin, September 25 (RHC)-- German prosecutors have indicted three top executives at Volkswagen — including the company's CEO — for market manipulation.

The executives are accused of not informing investors soon enough about the company's diesel emissions scandal. The indictments come four years after the automaker admitted to installing devices on millions of cars to circumvent emissions tests.

<https://www.radiohc.cu/en/noticias/internacionales/203150-german-prosecutors-indict-volkswagen-executives-over-diesel-emissions-scandal>

Radio Habana Cuba