

Havana to host International Conference on Hemispheric and US Studies 2020

Havana, January 17 (RHC)-- The Center for Hemispheric and US Studies (CEHSEU) and the Nuestra America Department of the University of Havana is calling on scholars from around the world to participate in an International Conference on Hemispheric and US Studies 2020, set for June 3rd through the 5th, 2020, at the Varona Building of the University of Havana.

The organizing committee calls on those interested in participating to submit papers on such issues as the US political system, the decision-making process and the US foreign policy and the US electoral system, among others.

Papers focusing on hemispheric processes should deal with conflicts, integration, regional or continental security and the role played by the United States, as well as Washington's hemispheric policy and its relations with each regional nation.
