

U.S. Centers for Disease Control considers recommending everyone wear a mask in public

Atlanta, April 2 (RHC)-- In the U.S., the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention -- based in Atlanta, Georgia -- is reconsidering its advisory that people should not wear masks. The CDC previously gave that advice, apparently aimed at preventing a run on personal protective equipment, which is already in short supply.

In response, Los Angeles Mayor Eric Garcetti has now urged all residents to use nonmedical-grade masks or facial coverings while in public.

<https://www.radiohc.cu/en/noticias/internacionales/218605-us-centers-for-disease-control-considers-recommending-everyone-wear-a-mask-in-public>

Radio Habana Cuba