

He stressed that at a time when the U.S. government is increasing the blockade against the Caribbean country, which prevents the acquisition of equipment and supplies, acts of cooperation are materializing between Cuba and China, two socialist nations, based on mutual respect and equality.

Chen Xi, Ambassador of the People's Republic of China in Cuba, said that the SARS-CoV-2 virus, the cause of COVID-19, knows no borders or nationalities, and that only with solidarity and cooperation can the virus be defeated.

The first batch of Chinese donations -- which arrived in early April -- has been distributed satisfactorily. A second shipment donated by the Asian giant's government is scheduled to arrive tomorrow afternoon, and then a third.

<https://www.radiohc.cu/en/noticias/nacionales/221984-cuba-receives-batch-of-masks-donated-by-the-communist-party-of-china>

Radio Habana Cuba