

Beijing reports zero new cases for first time since market outbreak

Beijing, July 7 (RHC)-- Beijing has reported no new cases of coronavirus for the first time since an outbreak emerged at the Chinese capital's main wholesale market last month.

City authorities say they have tested more than 11 million people for COVID-19 since June 11.

Pang Xinghuo, deputy director of Beijing's centre for disease control, said the outbreak was "stabilising and improving."

<https://www.radiohc.cu/en/noticias/internacionales/227887-beijing-reports-zero-new-cases-for-first-time-since-market-outbreak>

Radio Habana Cuba