

Sierra Club apologizes for racist views of founder John Muir

SIERRA

The national magazine of the Sierra Club

CLIMATE & ENERGY

LANDS & WATERS

ADVENTURE

LIFESTYLE

ELECTION 2020

MAGAZINE

DONATE

SEARCH

GO

PROTESTORS IN FOLEY SQUARE, NEW YORK CITY | PHOTO BY MARK PETERSON/REDUX

LATEST UPDATES

Can We Render the Outdoors Truly Inclusive?

15 hours ago

Alejandro Prieto's Jaguar Story Celebrates Mexico's Big Cats

1 day ago

Activism 101 for Teenagers (and Those Who Love Them)

2 days ago

Welcome to SharkFest 2020

3 days ago

MORE

CORONAVIRUS UPDATES

ICYMI: British Bison, Deconstructing NEPA, Peak Human in 2064 & More

5 days ago

"I Can't Breathe"

San Francisco, July 26 (RHC)-- The Sierra Club has apologized for the racist views held by the conservationist John Muir who founded the organization in 1892 and has been called the "The Father of our National Parks."

Sierra Club's executive director Michael Brune wrote this week: "As defenders of Black life pull down Confederate monuments across the country, we must also take this moment to reexamine our past and our substantial role in perpetuating white supremacy. It's time to take down some of our own monuments."

<https://www.radiohc.cu/en/noticias/internacionales/229690-sierra-club-apologizes-for-racist-views-of-founder-john-muir>

Radio Habana Cuba