

FDA approves Remdesivir for COVID-19 despite WHO study showing no benefit

FDA approves Remdesivir for COVID-19 despite WHO study showing no benefit. (Photo: AP)

Washington, October 24 (RHC)-- The U.S. Food and Drug Administration has approved Remdesivir as the first COVID-19 treatment in the United States.

Some studies have shown the antiviral drug may reduce the number of days COVID-19 patients are hospitalized, although a large World Health Organization study published last week found Remdesivir fails to prevent deaths among COVID-19 patients.

<https://www.radiohc.cu/en/noticias/internacionales/237736-fda-approves-remdesivir-for-covid-19-despite-who-study-showing-no-benefit>

Radio Habana Cuba