

Hospitals on both sides of U.S.-Mexico border reach capacity amid COVID-19 surge

Hospitals on both sides of U.S.-Mexico border reach capacity amid COVID-19 surge.

Mexico City, November 6 (RHC)-- In Mexico, hospitals in the northern border city of Ciudad Juárez have reached capacity and began wait-listing patients amid a surge of COVID-19 cases.

Officials have imposed a nightly curfew and ordered the largely U.S.-owned factories known as maquiladoras to close on weekends.

Across the border, overtaxed hospitals in El Paso have been airlifting COVID patients to other cities in Texas.

<https://www.radiohc.cu/en/noticias/internacionales/238958-hospitals-on-both-sides-of-us-mexico-border-reach-capacity-amid-covid-19-surge>

Radio Habana Cuba