

Luis Arce sworn-in as new President of Bolivia

Luis Arce sworn-in as new President of Bolivia.

La Paz, November 8 (RHC)-- The inauguration ceremony this Sunday morning of President Luis Arce and Vice President David Choquehuanca consecrated one of the most relevant democratic processes in the history of Bolivia, according to media sources in Latin America.

For both leaders -- winners with 55.18 percent of votes in the October 18th elections -- their inauguration revokes the injustice of a year of de-facto coup government and vindicates the victory of the Movement toward Socialism (MAS).

Among those invited guests were the heads of state of several nations, including the president of Argentina, Alberto Fernández, and the King of Spain, Felipe VI. Other foreign guests were the foreign ministers of Venezuela, Jorge Arreaza; and of Iran, Mohammad Yavad Zarif; and the senator of the Dominican Republic, Antonio Taveras.
