

Trump plans to impose new sanctions on Iran

US Special Representative for Iran and Venezuela, Elliott Abrams. (Photo: AFP / Erin SCHAFF)

Washington, November 9 (RHC)-- The administration of lame-duck President Donald Trump is reportedly planning a flood of new sanctions against Iran in coordination with Israel and other U.S. allies in West Asia.

Two Israeli sources told Axios about the sanctions as the Trump administration's envoy for Iran, Elliott Abrams, arrived in Israel on Sunday and met with Israeli Prime Minister Netanyahu and national security adviser Meir Ben-Shabbat.

Abrams was set to meet on Monday with the Israeli minister of military, Benny Gantz, and Foreign Minister Gabi Ashkenazi to brief them on the anti-Iran plan.

"The planned sanctions are not connected to the Iranian nuclear program — such sanctions are more likely to be canceled by a Biden administration and open the door to reviving the 2015 nuclear deal," read the report.

Iran has hailed the end of Trump and his hawkish policies, expressing hope that his successor would return to the rule of law and respect other nations.

<https://www.radiohc.cu/en/noticias/internacionales/239216-trump-plans-to-impose-new-sanctions-on-iran>

Radio Habana Cuba