?Muslims are using social media platforms to vent their anger at France over its plan to ban the hijab for minors.?

Paris, April 21 (RHC)-- Muslims are using social media platforms to vent their anger at France over its plan to ban the hijab for minors. Reports from Paris say they are using viral hashtag campaigns in different languages to condemn what they call French state oppression against Muslims and its criminalization of Islamic values.

Amid France's ongoing anti-Islam crackdown, a new wave of pressure has flooded in from the online world. Hashtag campaigns -- in both English and French -- have gone viral, demanding that the French state backs down on the planned Hijab ban for all under 18's.

The hijab ban was just an extra addition to legislation which seeks to target so-called "Islamic separatism." However, critics have condemned these steps, claiming that they are criminalizing the Islamic faith and creating an atmosphere of hatred against ordinary Muslims.
