

400-Mile youth climate arch ends with protest at Houston home of Ted Cruz

Image not found or type unknown

400-Mile youth climate arch ends with protest at Houston home of Ted Cruz

Houston, June 23 (RHC)-- Climate youth activists and members of the Sunrise Movement ended their 400-mile march from New Orleans to Texas Monday outside the Houston home of Republican Senator Ted Cruz — a committed climate change denier. At least eight protesters were arrested.

Nineteen-year-old climate activist Ishan Gupta said in a statement: “Biden, I voted for you because I thought I was securing my future, but every day since inauguration I’ve woken up with the same fears. ... Deliver on your promises so I can have a future doing meaningful work like fixing our power grid.”

In February, millions of Texas residents faced a massive blackout and freezing temperatures after the state’s power grid collapsed. At the time, Senator Cruz decided to travel to Cancún, Mexico, to escape the winter cold.

<https://www.radiohc.cu/en/noticias/internacionales/261602-400-mile-youth-climate-arch-ends-with-protest-at-houston-home-of-ted-cruz>

Radio Habana Cuba