

Dutch crime reporter Peter R. de Vries dies one week after being shot on the street

Dutch crime reporter Peter R. de Vries dies one week after being shot on the street

Amsterdam, July 16 (RHC)-- In the Netherlands, renowned crime reporter Peter R. de Vries died yesterday after being shot in an attack in Amsterdam last week.

The 64-year-old was a household name in the Netherlands, investigating cold-case killings and reporting on organized crime for decades. He had received death threats in the past and was previously given police protection.

In a statement, de Vries's family said, "We are unbelievably proud of him and at the same time inconsolable."

<https://www.radiohc.cu/en/noticias/internacionales/264117-dutch-crime-reporter-peter-r-de-vries-dies-one-week-after-being-shot-on-the-street>

Radio Habana Cuba