

Report on NCAA finds stark gap in resources for men's and women's athletics

Image not found or type unknown

Report on NCAA finds stark gap in resources for men's and women's athletics

New York, August 6 (RHC)-- In U.S. sports news, a new report finds the National Collegiate Athletic Association has consistently treated women's sports as inferior to men's — with stark gender-based differences in the goods, services and resources provided to competitors in “March Madness” basketball tournaments.

An outside review commissioned by the NCAA recommends a number of reforms, including a combined men’s and women’s Final Four tournament.

<https://www.radiohc.cu/en/noticias/internacionales/266287-report-on-ncaa-finds-stark-gap-in-resources-for-mens-and-womens-athletics>

Radio Habana Cuba