Cuban boxer Andy Cruz closes Tokyo 2020 with the Gold

Tokyo, August 8 (RHC)-- Boxer Andy Cruz closed Cuba's performance at the Tokyo 2020 Olympic Games with a victory in the final of the 63 kilograms against American Keyshawn Davis by a score of 4-1.

Andy Cruz, two-time world champion, won his first crown in summer events against the American, whom he defeated for the fourth time without the shadow of a setback by receiving a vote of 29-28, 29-28, 29-28, 29-28, 29-28 and 28-29.

In a close fight with few exchanges, the Cuban boxer appealed to his best technique to keep his opponent at a distance and connect swings and right rights to Davis' face.

With Cruz's title, the Cuban delegation finishes with seven Gold medals, three Silver and five Bronze in the Olympic Games of Tokyo 2020.
