U.S. announces plans for vaccine boosters despite criticism from WHO

Washington, August 20 (RHC)-- The Joe Biden administration has announced plans to begin offering vaccine booster shots starting on September 20, citing new CDC studies showing the declining effectiveness of COVID vaccines.

The U.S. decision has been widely criticized. Earlier this week, World Health Organization Director-General Tedros Adhanom tweeted: “It’s unconscionable that some COVID-19 vaccine-producing companies are reporting record profits, and some countries are offering boosters, while so many people remain unprotected.”
