

Harvard divests from fossil fuels after years-long student campaign

Harvard divests from fossil fuels after years-long student campaign?

Boston, September 11 (RHC)-- In the U.S. state of Massachusetts, Harvard president Lawrence Bacow said his university will no longer invest its $42 billion endowment in fossil fuel companies.

The announcement was a victory for the campus organization Fossil Fuel Divest Harvard, which was founded in 2012.

The group tweeted: “It took conversations and protests, meetings with administration, faculty/alumni votes, mass sit-ins and arrests, historic legal strategies, and storming football fields. But today, we can see proof that activism works, plain and simple.”

<https://www.radiohc.cu/en/noticias/internacionales/269855-harvard-divests-from-fossil-fuels-after-years-long-student-campaign>

Radio Habana Cuba