

U.S. president warns governors of hospital bed shortages

Image not found or type unknown

Washington, December 30 (RHC)-- In the United States, the average number of daily coronavirus infections is poised to surpass last winter's record high, with nearly a quarter-million new cases being reported each day.

At the White House, President Joe Biden met virtually with some of the nation's governor, warning the Omicron surge threatens to bring shortages of hospital beds and ventilators.

Biden defended his administration's moves to supply U.S. households with coronavirus test kits but said more needed to be done. "It's not enough. It's clearly not enough. If I had — we had known, we would have gone harder, quicker, if we could have."

<https://www.radiohc.cu/en/noticias/internacionales/281342-us-president-warns-governors-of-hospital-bed-shortages>

Radio Habana Cuba