

Foreign minister condemns media manipulation against Cuba

Rodríguez affirms that the intention of those media stumbles against other images of fidelity and commitment on the part of the Cuban people. Photo: Archivo/RHC

Havana, January 31 (RHC)-- Cuban Foreign Minister Bruno Rodríguez condemned on Monday the crude media manipulation of Cuba by transnational media outlets such as the Spanish newspaper El País.

On his official Twitter account, Rodríguez Parrilla rejected the campaign of that newspaper, which presented manipulated photos of the subversive actions that occurred in Cuban territory last July 11.

"The truth is a victim of transnational media," denounced the foreign minister, and described as unacceptable the presentation in El País, as the opposite, of a photo of a Cuban woman defending, flag in hand, her Revolution.

Rodríguez accompanies his tweet with an image of a recent article in that Spanish newspaper that uses photographs of the actions in support of the Revolution by the Cuban people, showing them as an alleged social outburst occurring in Cuba on July 11, 2021.

In another communication, the foreign minister referred that the intention of those media stumbles with other images of loyalty and commitment on the part of the Cuban people, and links a photo of Cuban President Miguel Díaz-Canel, who receives tokens of support from the people.

Promoted from the United States, the digital media platforms that articulate the anti-Cuban policy in cyberspace, as well as the international media, have developed a campaign of manipulation against the island, with the aim of destabilizing the country and creating an image of ungovernability.

Added to this is the proliferation of fake news against the Cuban government, together with the occurrence of cybersecurity incidents, which have affected the availability of several government websites, including that of the Presidency of Cuba and the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, among others.

<https://www.radiohc.cu/en/noticias/nacionales/284641-foreign-minister-condemns-media-manipulation-against-cuba>

Radio Habana Cuba