

Police in Texas waited over an hour to confront shooter as students begged for help

Image not found or type unknown

In Uvalde, Texas, funerals are underway for the 19 children and two teachers killed one week ago when a gunman attacked the Robb Elementary School with an assault rifle he purchased just days after his 18th birthday.

Houston, May 31 (RHC)-- In Uvalde, Texas, funerals are underway for the 19 children and two teachers killed one week ago when a gunman attacked the Robb Elementary School with an assault rifle he purchased just days after his 18th birthday.

Earlier, the Justice Department announced it would review the local police response to the massacre. Authorities now admit there were 19 police officers inside the elementary school shortly after the attack began, but they decided not to confront the gunman. Instead, they stood outside the classroom for about 50 minutes. During that time, at least two students and teachers repeatedly called 911 begging for help.

<https://www.radiohc.cu/en/noticias/internacionales/289356-police-in-texas-waited-over-an-hour-to-confront-shooter-as-students-begged-for-help>

Radio Habana Cuba