

Peru's president attends Summit of the Americas

The Peruvian President attends the Summit of the Americas, alongside Ministers and representatives. Jun. 8, 2022. | Photo: Twitter/@presidenciaperu

Los Angeles, June 9 (RHC)-- In the framework of the Summit of the Americas, celebrated in Los Angeles, Peruvian President Pedro Castillo met with his Colombian counterpart, President Ivan Duque, on Wednesday morning.

During the meeting, President Castillo was accompanied by the Peruvian Economy-Finance Minister Oscar Graham, Peru's Permanent Representative to the OAS Harold Forsyth, and Peruvian Ambassador to Spain Oscar Mautua.

The Peruvian president had arrived in the U.S. on Wednesday morning to take part in the IX Summit of the Americas which will last through Friday, June 10th.

The complicated agenda of the Peruvian head of state, includes meetings with presidents of the regional representatives of international organizations and businesspeople, in the hope of finding new investments for the Andean nation.

As part of his activities at IX Summit of the Americas, President Pedro Castillo spoke with senior representatives of Citigroup, one of the world's largest financial companies, and Freeport-McMoRan, a major global mining company.

The Peruvian President attends the Summit of the Americas, alongside Ministers and representatives. Jun. 8, 2022. | Photo: Twitter/@presidenciaperu

Radio Habana Cuba