

*Nobel Peace Laureate Malala
Yousafzai warns girls impacted most from climate crisis*

Image not found or type unknown

Nobel Peace Prize laureate Malala Yousafzai joined with youth climate activists Greta Thunberg and Vanessa Nakate in a protest outside the Swedish parliament.

Oslo, June 15 (RHC)-- Nobel Peace Prize laureate Malala Yousafzai joined with youth climate activists Greta Thunberg and Vanessa Nakate in a protest outside the Swedish parliament.

Malala Yousafzai talked about how the climate emergency is impacting girls across the globe. "Due to climate-related events, millions of girls lose their access to schools."

"Events like droughts and floods impact schools directly. Displacements are caused due to some of these events. And because of that, girls are impacted the most. They're the first ones to drop out of schools and then the last ones to return, as well."

<https://www.radiohc.cu/en/noticias/internacionales/290784-nobel-peace-laureate-malala-yousafzai-warns-girls-impacted-most-from-climate-crisis>

Radio Habana Cuba