

U.S. federal judge names special master and orders DOJ to delay review of documents held by Trump

A U.S. federal judge has rejected a request by the Justice Department (DOJ) to resume its investigation into documents seized by the FBI from Donald Trump's Mar-a-Lago estate in Florida.

Washington, September 17 (RHC)-- A U.S. federal judge has rejected a request by the Justice Department (DOJ) to resume its investigation into documents seized by the FBI from Donald Trump's Mar-a-Lago estate in Florida.

U.S. District Judge Aileen Cannon upheld her earlier ruling which bars the Justice Department from further examining the documents — many of which are marked “Top Secret” — until a “special master” has a chance to review more than 11,000 pages. She also formally named retired federal Judge Raymond J. Dearie to the position.

The ruling will add lengthy delays to the Justice Department's criminal probe into Trump's mishandling of government records. Judge Cannon was nominated to the federal bench in 2020 by then-President Trump.
