The two-day agenda of the Peruvian head of state includes meetings between the ministers of both countries and a meeting with his Chilean counterpart Gabriel Boric with the Peru-Chile Business Council.

According to the Foreign Ministry, during Pedro Castillo's visit, the Santiago II Action Plan is expected to be approved, which includes commitments in the areas of social affairs and culture for integration, security and defense, foreign trade, investments, tourism and cooperation in science and technology, environment, sustainable development, energy and mining matters and border development and integration and infrastructure matters.
