

Former Brazilian justice minister arrested upon return from Florida

Brasilia, January 14 (RHC)-- The former Minister of Justice during the government of former President Jair Bolsonaro, Anderson Torres, was arrested by the Federal Police on Saturday morning, after arriving in Brasilia on a flight from Florida..

His remand in custody was decreed earlier this week by Minister Alexandre de Moraes, of the Federal Supreme Court, at the request of the Federal Police. Judge Moraes said that there are indications that there may have been omission and connivance of the security authorities of Brasília (Federal District) with the bolsonarista invaders.

Torres, who was head of the Federal Police and held the position of Secretary of Public Security of the Federal District at the time of the attacks on the headquarters of the three branches of the Brazilian State, denied having anything to do with last Sunday's actions.

Torres, who was Minister of Justice until December 31, 2022, said he regrets "deeply that absurd hypotheses of any connivance of mine with the barbarities we witnessed" are raised.

On Tuesday, the Federal Police seized a draft in Anderson Torres' house that would decree a state of emergency in the Superior Electoral Court (TSE) to change the result of the 2022 elections, won by the current president, Luiz Inácio Lula da Silva.

Torres took over as Public Security Secretary of Brasília on January 2nd and five days later went on a "vacation" in the United States, in order not to be in the country at the time of the attacks by far-right radicals.

Upon learning of the magistrate's decision, the former minister announced that he would return to the country to be in the hands of Justice and prove his innocence, since he alleges that there was a contingency plan in case of violent acts during the Bolsonarista marches.
