The Dominican Republic is working to be a worthy host of the great event, both in terms of its development and agenda as well as the logistics involved in an event of this magnitude.

In a tour carried out this Friday by Prensa Latina, it was possible to see how some of the hotels where the delegations are expected to stay are receiving exterior and esthetic touches, as well as the Colonial Zone of Santo Domingo.

In the Ozama Fortress, where the conclave will be inaugurated next Friday, tents and platforms are being erected and the historic site is being refurbished.

The port of Sansouci in the capital is also getting ready, since its Convention Center will host the Ibero-American business meeting planned for Wednesday 23.

Likewise, this Friday, the National Institute of Transit and Land Transportation informed that the streets of at least 10 sectors of the National District will be partially closed during the days of the Summit.

Among the affected sectors it mentioned Bella Vista, La Julia, Mata Hambre, Centro de los Héroes, Villa María, Zona Universitaria, Gazcue, Ciudad Nueva and Colonial, as well as Sans Souci.

In this regard, the agency indicated that it plans to establish alternate routes to avoid congestion on the roads during the development of the activities of the event, and asked the population to be attentive to social networks where information will be published.
