

Presidents of Russia and Kyrgyzstan discussed cooperation issues

Havana, April 10 (RHC) - Russian President Vladimir Putin discussed development of cooperation between Russia and Kyrgyzstan in a telephone conversation with his Kyrgyz counterpart Sadir Zhaparov on Thursday.

Both leaders discussed a series of practical aspects for the further development of mutually beneficial bilateral cooperation, including trade, economy, financial and humanitarian fields.

According to the information provided by the Kremlin, in the context of the Russian presidency in the Eurasian Economic Union (EAEU) and the Kyrgyz presidency in the Commonwealth of Independent States (CIS), "some issues of interaction of integration associations were raised in the Eurasian space".

Likewise, the mutual intention to continue strengthening alliance relations between Russia and Kyrgyzstan was confirmed and it was agreed to continue personal contacts.

Finally, Putin and Zhaparov confirmed "the mutual intention to continue strengthening Russian-Kyrgyz relations" and agreed to "continue personal contacts," the Kremlin summarized. (Source: Prensa Latina)
