British Parliament opens investigation into Rishi Sunak for alleged conflict of interest

Havana, April 17 (RHC) - Britain's Parliament has announced the opening of an inquiry into Prime Minister Rishi Sunak over an alleged conflict of interest.

Although Parliament does not mention the reasons for the investigation, several local media suggest that the process is related to the Koru Kids childcare company, of which his wife Akshata Murty is a shareholder.

According to some media, the company would benefit from a government pilot scheme to encourage people to become childcare providers. (Source: Sputnik)
