

Dutch climate activists have been blocking major highway for more than 20 days

Image not found or type unknown

Amsterdam, September 29 (RHC)-- In the Netherlands, a massive climate protest is now in its 20th day as activists blockade the A12, a major highway. Over 6,000 people have been arrested since the action started.

Activists are demanding the Dutch government end its over $40 billion in annual subsidies for fossil fuel companies. Demonstrators say police are using increasingly violent tactics to quell their movement.

Extinction Rebellion Netherlands is taking authorities to court in a bid to ban the use of water cannons against peaceful protesters.

<https://www.radiohc.cu/en/noticias/internacionales/335362-dutch-climate-activists-have-been-blocking-major-highway-for-more-than-20-days>

Radio Habana Cuba