

Palestinians search ruins of Al-Shifa for loved ones after Israel obliterates hospital

Rafah, April 5 (RHC)-- The World Health Organization is warning many patients could soon die if they are not evacuated from Al-Shifa Hospital, which has been left in ruins after a two-week Israeli military siege.

Medical crews have found hundreds of bodies scattered across the medical complex. Palestinians are still searching the grounds for loved ones.

One man, looking for his family members, Abdullah Abu Elouf, said: "I am now searching for six people we lost in the war: my sister, all of her children, and my niece, Alma. May Allah have mercy on her. I have found no trace of them. They were buried here and we don't know what happened to their bodies or where they went. We don't know anything. Here we find a number of uncovered bodies, and they are unidentified. We don't know what to do with them."
