

*Police violently move in on protesters at peaceful Gaza solidarity protests at University of Texas/Austin, Princeton,
Emerson and other colleges*

Austin, April 25 (RHC)-- At the University of Texas in Austin, school officials called in local and state police, who violently crushed a student attempt to set up an encampment on the university's South Mall. At least 50 people were arrested, including at least one journalist.

Some faculty at UT Austin are going on strike to protest the police crackdown. In a statement, the teachers wrote: "We have witnessed police punching a female student, knocking over a legal observer, dragging a student over a chain link fence, and violently arresting students simply for standing at the front of the crowd."

In Massachusetts, police made at least 108 arrests as officers broke up a student encampment at Emerson College in Boston overnight. Meanwhile, students at Harvard University defied school orders and began a tent encampment at Harvard Yard, which had been closed on Tuesday.

And earlier Thursday morning, police moved in and started arresting Princeton students as they were setting up their own Gaza solidarity encampment.

<https://www.radiohc.cu/en/noticias/internacionales/353165-police-violently-move-in-on-protesters-at-peaceful-gaza-solidarity-protests-at-university-of-texas-austin-princeton-emerson-and-other-colleges>

Radio Habana Cuba