

Displaced Palestinians in Rafah display messages on tents, thanking student protesters in U.S.

Rafah, April 28 (RHC)-- Displaced Palestinians at camps in southern Gaza's Rafah are thanking student protesters in the U.S. for their solidarity.

At the al-Quds refugee camp, displaced people have been displaying messages of gratitude on their tents. One of the messages reads: "Thank you, students in solidarity with Gaza. Your message has reached."

Takfeer Hamad, the director of the camp, said: "This idea came to us after seeing the news and media reports, especially the support from the students of the world, especially the students of Columbia University for standing with us, with their humanity, their hearts and their compassion."

"We hope for the world to stand united with them. We hope for the world to support them, not to arrest them and imprison them," he added.
