Paris, May 8 (RHC).- The famous Hollywood actor Tom Cruise, leader of the Mission Impossible spy saga, will be one of the protagonists of the closing ceremony of the Paris 2024 Olympic Games, the French press reports today. .

The news presented exclusively by the RMC Sport network spreads like wildfire, detailing that the actor was seen last month filming on Parisian streets on a motorcycle and in Ethan Hunt mode (the character from Mission Impossible).

According to the sports media, this is not a new chapter in the successful saga, but rather the preparations for the closing of the event under the five rings at the Stade de France on August 11, when the City of Light will hand over the Olympic baton to Los Angeles, home of the great event in 2028.

Cruise would therefore be one of the central characters of the traditional moment in which an Olympic venue gives space to what will happen to him. It will not be the first connection with the games for the 61-year-old actor, who in 2004 was one of the bearers of the Olympic torch for the Athens event.
