

Thousands take to the streets in London to protest latest Rafah massacre

London, May 30 (RHC)-- As the Israeli genocide against the people of Palestine continues unabated, the regime's military forces are waging an increasingly violent killing spree against displaced Gazans seeking refuge in Rafah in the south of the blockaded territory.

In the latest massacre, dozens of men, women and children were murdered in their tents by Israeli occupation forces while they were asleep. That has sparked renewed outrage at Israel with protests once more engulfing the British capital London.

Protesters gathered outside Downing Street, the seat of power of the UK, to protest the latest Israeli war crime. For the protesters, the British government is fully culpable in this genocide, providing military, financial, and, political, support to the Zionist regime, a stance that the demonstrators are adamant must be abandoned immediately.

One protest organizer told reporters: "I just can't believe how our country is so complicit in funding this genocide and in denying the terrible suffering of and starvation on purpose of people. I've never seen such evil in all my lifetime."
