

The breaking up of the so-called Land of Freedom

By Guillermo Alvarado

The Information Office of the State Council of China published an analysis of the human rights situation in the United States, a country that likes to qualify others, but is unable to see within itself the serious deficiencies it maintains in this matter.

The document specifies that the civil and political rights of the general population, economic and social inequalities and the guarantees of women and children are the main aspects that deteriorated significantly in the northern power during 2023.

The text ensures that the majority of inhabitants are increasingly marginalized and despised in comparison to the dominant minorities in politics, the economy and society.

Regarding other issues, the report indicates that the police are not accountable for their actions and the brutality of their actions caused at least 1,247 deaths throughout the territory in that period.

Racial discrimination is serious and deeply rooted in that society and proof is that maternal mortality among Afro-descendant women is three times higher than that of white women.

In other figures, the analysis indicates that in the reputed country of opportunities there are 11 and a half million working families whose income is insufficient to satisfy their needs, salaries have not grown since 2009 while the purchasing power of the dollar fell by 70 percent.

It is also the country with the largest number of firearms in the hands of the population and injuries caused by these types of devices are among the main causes of death.

But the United States also represents a threat to neighboring or nearby countries, notes the document from the State Council of the Republic of China.

Citing official data from the Mexican government, every year more than half a million weapons of various types and calibers are smuggled across the common border and become a threat to the society of the Latin American country.

In fact, more than 70 percent of guns seized at violent crime scenes between 2014 and 2018 came from across the Rio Grande.

As if that were not enough, the immigration crisis on the southern border is absolute chaos due to the measures adopted by former President Donald Trump and accentuated by Joseph Biden. In short, the northern power has nothing to teach the world in terms of human rights since its debt on this issue is enormous inside and outside its territory.
