

Venezuela formally begins the electoral campaign with huge mobilization in Caracas for President Nicolas Maduro

From the early hours of the morning, the organizations that support Nicolás Maduro's candidacy were activated. Photo: PSUV

Caracas, July 4 (RHC)-- The United Socialist Party of Venezuela (PSUV) called for a large march this Thursday at the national level, called the Great March for Victory, to support the administration of President Nicolás Maduro Moros, candidate of the people, peace and unity for the presidential elections on July 28th.

The Great March for Victory, which coincides with the official start of the presidential campaign, was organized to carry out 70 mobilizations that for ten days will travel through the 335 Venezuelan municipalities, articulated by the PSUV, the organizations that make up the Great Patriotic Pole and other sectors that also support the candidacy of Maduro Moros.

Within this concept, this Thursday afternoon thousands of students, young people, workers, women and retirees residing in the east and west of Caracas mobilized through 15 routes that will then converge at two departure points and from there they advanced towards the Miraflores Palace.

<https://www.radiohc.cu/en/noticias/internacionales/359204-venezuela-formally-begins-the-electoral-campaign-with-huge-mobilization-in-caracas-for-president-nicolas-maduro>

Radio Habana Cuba