

Interfaith protesters disrupt Washington, DC gathering of Christians United for Israel

Image not found or type unknown

Washington, July 31 (RHC)-- In Washington, D.C., dozens of interfaith activists on Tuesday disrupted a gathering on Capitol Hill by members of the lobby group Christians United for Israel — one of the largest pro-Israel organizations in the U.S. with some 11 million members.

The group's annual summit largely focuses on advocating for increased U.S. military support to Israel. Activists blocked a bus transporting CUFI members from National Harbor in Maryland to Capitol Hill. Meanwhile, in a separate action, several activists took to the water in kayaks at National Harbor, just outside the hotel and conference site where CUFI members gathered. Protesters held a 28-foot banner that read "CUFI kills" and Palestinian flags, as activists also denounced CUFI's ties to white nationalism.

<https://www.radiohc.cu/en/noticias/internacionales/361607-interfaith-protesters-disrupt-washington-dc-gathering-of-christians-united-for-israel>

Radio Habana Cuba