

Venezuela denounces fake minutes presented by the opposition

Caracas, August 3 (RHC)-- The head of the "Venezuela Nuestra" Campaign Command and president of the National Assembly, Jorge Rodríguez, denounced this Friday the falsity of the alleged minutes presented by the opposition, on a website that aims to replace the National Electoral Council.

Rodríguez presented evidence about the plans of the right in the pre-election that included the announcement of not recognizing the results of the CNE, but only those of the "minutes" that emanated from the "count" of his campaign. They said this since July 18th, ten days before the elections.

The president of the National Assembly also explained that his campaign command had managed to extract the information contained in the website presented by the opposition.

Along the same lines, he gave an account of the technical details of the acquisition of the domain, even before the elections, as an expression of the premeditation with which they acted in this case.

Rodríguez explained that the website only contains 9,468 alleged minutes of the more than 36,000 tables installed last Sunday, which refutes the statements that they had "more than 70 percent" of the so-called minutes, a number that has also changed. (Source: teleSur)
