

Spanish congress recognizes Edmundo González as Venezuela's president-elect

Image not found or type unknown

The President of the Government of Spain greets Edmundo Gonzalez upon his arrival at the Moncloa Palace / Photo: Pool Moncloa / Fernando Calvo

Madrid, September 12 (RHC)-- In Madrid, the Spanish congress voted Wednesday to recognize right-wing opposition leader and former presidential candidate Edmundo González as president-elect of Venezuela, just days after he was granted asylum in Spain and flew to the capital.

But -- in an apparent contradiction among all contradictions -- Spanish Prime Minister Pedro Sánchez, who has met with Gonzalez, said he will not recognize González as Venezuela's president.

Radio Habana Cuba