

U.S. president-elect taps Elise Stefanik as U.S. ambassador to the United Nations

Image not found or type unknown

Washington, November 12 (RHC)-- Donald Trump has chosen New York Republican Congressmember Elise Stefanik to serve as his ambassador to the United Nations.

Stefanik is a Trump loyalist and the only woman in the House Republican leadership.

She recently joined congressional hearings over free speech and support for Palestinian rights on campus, where her McCarthy-style grilling of two Ivy League presidents over allegations of campus antisemitism led to their resignations.

[SOURCE: DEMOCRACY NOW]

<https://www.radiohc.cu/en/noticias/internacionales/369576-us-president-elect-taps-elise-stefanik-as-us-ambassador-to-the-united-nations>

Radio Habana Cuba