

Desde la Presidencia podcast dedicates episode to Cuban children

Havana, November 22 (RHC) -- The Cuban Presidency published this Friday the 13th episode of the podcast Desde la Presidencia, dedicated to the children and adolescents of the country.

"Díaz-Canel receives Cuban pioneers at the Palace of the Revolution" is the title of this new chapter, on the occasion of the 35th anniversary of the signing of the Convention on the Rights of the Child.

According to the description of the video, the children accompanied by the President toured spaces of the emblematic place, talked about their rights, asked questions to the president and told their stories.

“Welcome to the Palace of the Revolution, a place that is living history,” said the head of state at the foot of the marble staircase that leads to the doors of the Presidency of the Republic of Cuba when receiving the visitors.

On the occasion of the visit, Díaz-Canel shared images on his X profile and expressed his satisfaction with the exchange with the children.

On World Children's Day, we talked with Cuban children and adolescents about their rights, we will have to hold meetings like this more often, he declared. (ACN)

<https://www.radiohc.cu/en/noticias/nacionales/370345-desde-la-presidencia-podcasts-dedicados-episodio-a-los-ninos-cubanos>

Radio Habana Cuba