

Donald Trump adviser Boris Epshteyn sought bribes for potential appointees

Washington, November 26 (RHC)-- One of Donald Trump's top advisers, Boris Epshteyn, was found by Trump's legal team to have solicited bribes from potential political appointees in exchange for promoting them in Trump's orbit.

Meanwhile, a new report on Trump's Cabinet picks estimates their combined net worth at a whopping $344.4 billion — more than the gross domestic product of 169 countries.

Elon Musk, who Trump named to head up his planned "Department of Government Efficiency" is worth $332 billion.

[SOURCE: DEMOCRACY NOW]

<https://www.radiohc.cu/en/noticias/internacionales/370660-donald-trump-adviser-boris-epshteyn-sought-bribes-for-potential-appointees>

Radio Habana Cuba