

Earth's glaciers are melting at accelerated rate

New York, February 28 (RHC)-- A new study published in the journal Nature finds glaciers are melting at an accelerating rate, causing a major rise in sea levels — two centimeters this century alone.

Over the past decade, over one-third more ice melted than the previous decade. Rising sea levels are leading to increasingly severe flooding for hundreds of millions of people in coastal communities.

[SOURCE: DEMOCRACY NOW]

<https://www.radiohc.cu/en/noticias/internacionales/377581-earths-glaciers-are-melting-at-accelerated-rate>

Radio Habana Cuba