

U.S. judge blocks DOGE from firing head of U.S. African Development Foundation

ABOUT REACH IMPACT SECTORS PARTNERSHIPS STORIES MEDIA U.S. GOVERNMENT

Creating Pathways to Prosperity for Communities in Africa

The U.S. African Development Foundation is an independent U.S. government agency established directly in African grassroots enterprises and social entrepreneurs. USADF's investments increase jobs by promoting self-reliance and market-based solutions to poverty. USADF creates pathways for marginalized populations and communities across Africa.

Scroll Down

Washington, March 7 (RHC)-- A federal judge has temporarily blocked the Trump administration from firing the head of the U.S. African Development Foundation after Elon Musk's DOGE operation brought in U.S. marshals to gain access to the foundation's headquarters.

The judge's order came after the foundation's president sued DOGE and State Department official Pete Marocco over their attempts to dismantle the agency, which was established in 1980 to provide grants and loans to small businesses and entrepreneurs in Africa.

[SOURCE: DEMOCRACY NOW]

<https://www.radiohc.cu/en/noticias/internacionales/378244-us-judge-blocks-doge-from-firing-head-of-us-african-development-foundation>

Radio Habana Cuba