Havana, Mar 17 (RHC) - The Cuban rowing team will conclude, in the next few hours, its preparation in Paraguay as a preview to the qualifying tournament for the Junior Pan American Games of Asuncion 2025.

The qualifying tournament, which will be held in the Guarani capital from this Wednesday until Sunday, is crucial because it will offer tickets for the main modalities of this sport.

As part of what they have been living on Paraguayan soil for more than a week, the young people received the visit of the Cuban ambassador in that country, Dr. C. Francisco Fernández Peña.

The diplomat was interested in several questions, among them details of the training designed to have an immediate impact on Cuba's ambitious projections of competing with a solid and well-prepared delegation in Asunción 2025.

In the meeting, Angel Luis Garcia, president of the Cuban Rowing Federation, assured that the purposes with which they arrived in the South American nation have been fulfilled, where this Tuesday will take place the technical congress of the qualifier.

The Cubans could face other challenges in 2025, such as the World Cups in Varese, Italy (June 13-15), and Lucerne, Switzerland (June 27-29).
