Financial Action Task Force Trusts Cuban Banking System

The Financial Action Task Force (FATF) has decided to remove Cuba from its so-called Grey List, an action expressing international trust in the Cuban banking system and acknowledgement to the island's work against money laundering and terrorism financing.

The FATF is an intergovernmental entity set up in 1989 by the G-7 to promote policies to fight money laundering and the financing of terrorism.

During a recent plenary meeting in its headquarters in Paris, the FATF International Cooperation and Evaluation Group expressed satisfaction for the significant advancement of Cuba.

"Cuba has made significant progress to improve its Anti-Money Laundering and Combating Terrorism Financing regime (AML/CFT)," reads the document issued by the group and adds that Cuba has substantially addressed its action plan, by becoming a member of GAFISUD, the FATF chapter for the Latin-American region.

The reports also reads that the island has made advancement by adequately criminalizing money laundering and terrorist financing; establishing procedures to identify and freeze terrorist assets; establishing adequate customer due diligence requirements; ensuring a fully operational and effectively functioning financial intelligence unit and enhancing suspicious transaction reporting requirements.

During the recent meeting in Paris, representatives of several nations stressed the Cuban government's commitment to implement the action plan of the Financial Action Task Force and praised the constructive attitude of Cuban authorities during visits here by delegations from the intergovernmental entity.

Cuban territory has never been used and will never be used to organize, finance or undertake terrorist actions against any country, said diplomatic sources to PL news agency.

Lawmakers Express Rejection of US Blockade Against Cuba

The economic, financial and commercial blockade the United States has imposed to Cuba for more than 50 years is a failed and genocidal policy almost unanimously rejected by the international community today, the island's legislators stated.

The issue of the blockade maintained on Cuba by successive U.S. governments was debated during a hearing of the National Peoples' Power Assembly recently held at the Jose Antonio Echeverria Higher Institute for Technical Studies in this capital.

During the debate, the president of the International Relations Commission at the Legislative, Yolanda Ferrer, stated the extraterritorial nature of that measure to which she described as a failed policy that also lacerates the sovereignty of all States.

The blockade, due to its essence, purposes, impact and political, legal and administrative structure on which it is based, is an act of genocide, in virtue of the Convention for the Prevention and the Sanction of that crime adopted in Geneva in 1948, the legislator noted.

As of very conservative estimates and considering the depreciation of the dollar against the value of gold on the international market, the economic damage caused to Cuba amounted to $1.12 trillion USD... then, what could be said about its social impact and effects, stated Ferrer.

The president of the Commission on Constitutional and Judicial Affairs of the Parliament, José Luis Toledo, said that the destruction of the Cuban Revolution has been the obsession by U.S. administrations, and to try to achieve it, they have tried everything.

Toledo said that that blockade against Cuba is an illegal action in which the U.S. government systematically violates the most elementary norms of international law. And he referred to the world's rejection of this policy expressed by the UN General Assembly for 23 consecutive years.

Cuba's Deputy Foreign Minister, Abelardo Moreno, denounced the implacable persecution of Cuban financial transactions as one of the most visible features of Washington's attempt to overthrow the national economy.

Tobacco Growers in Western Cuba Expand Plantations

Tobacco planting in western Pinar del Rio province will use over 15 thousand 900 hectares of land for the 2014-2015 campaign, 115 hectares more than last year, when the local production was well below schedules, particularly due to bad weather.

Tobacco leaf production in Pinar del Rio, the Cuban territory considered as the cradle of Cuban cigars, mostly lies on the shoulders of private farmers and cooperatives, who contribute over 90% of the national production.

The upcoming campaign will be backed by nearly 10 growers grouped in different cooperative modalities operating on the island, as the tobacco plantations in Pinar del Rio contribute the highly demanded cigars that Cuba exports to the world in different brands and shapes.
