Switzerland, Mar 27 (PL) The Union of European Football Associations (UEFA) is investigating several Real Madrid players for indecent behavior, it announced today in a statement.

Vinícius Júnior, Kylian Mbappé, Antonio Rüdiger, and Dani Ceballos are in the sights of the entity that governs the sport in the old continent, after their behavior in the match where their Merengue team defeated Atlético de Madrid in a penalty shootout in the round of 16 of the Champions League.

UEFA confirmed that an ethics and disciplinary inspector has been appointed to investigate these behaviors and said that further information will be provided in due course.

Real Madrid will play Leganés this Saturday in a league tie and will play the first leg of their Champions League quarter-final against Arsenal on April 8.
